This invention relates to a rotary shaft engaging device, and more particularly to a rotary shaft engaging device for a shock absorber or the like to connect a first rotary shaft to a second rotary shaft where the two rotary shafts are disposed in parallel. Recently, attention has been directed to a rotary shaft engaging device which is located between a shock absorber and a rotating shaft which rotates the shock absorber. By this rotary shaft engaging device, shock absorber engagement or disengagement is made more easy, and power transmission can be carried out easily. There is also a proposal to use the rotary shaft engaging device as a synchronizing device, as disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 3,921,724. A first object of the present invention is to provide a rotary shaft engaging device which is capable of engaging or disengaging a rotary shaft without fail even if a pair of rotary shafts have no alignment. A second object of the present invention is to provide a rotary shaft engaging device which is capable of easily engaging a rotary shaft. A third object of the present invention is to provide a rotary shaft engaging
