The increasing numbers of patients with end-stage type I diabetes mellitus have led to greater interest in pancreas transplantation. This review examines the basic science, clinical outcomes, and issues with pancreas transplantation. It also explores the role of deceased donor pancreas transplantation, including cadaveric and living donor transplantation. Pancreas transplantation is an option for the treatment of patients with type I diabetes mellitus. Overall, graft and patient survival rates are comparable to those of other solid organ transplants. The long-term metabolic control and benefits of an improved quality of life and reduction in the risk of lower extremity amputations remain to be seen. Pancreas transplantation is associated with considerable morbidity and mortality, due to the high incidence of postoperative complications. The development of effective immunosuppressive regimens that minimize nephrotoxic effects and the potential benefits to an expanding population of patients with type I diabetes mellitus are needed.Q: Grouping by multiple columns in an inner join I have 2 tables like this: Table user: id name Table page_views: id page_id What i want to do is to get a list of users, and get the sum of the page_views for each user. So this is the result that i want: user_id name totalPageviews 1 asdf 3 1 asdf 5 2 rtyu 8 The thing is, i have to write this query in mybatis, and this are the queries that i know of: SELECT user.id, name, SUM(page_views.page_views) AS totalPageviews FROM user
